Legal

- Legal publications use notes for documentation; few include bibliographies. Any work using the author-date style that needs to do more than mention the occasional source in the text should therefore use supplementary Chicago Notes & Bibliography footnotes formatting. For a full discussion of legal and public documents, including examples, see CMOS 14.269–305.

Personal Communication: Email, Interview, Personal Communication

- Cite in-text only.
- Personal communication is material obtained directly from a person, organization, or other source that your typical readers will be unable to access.
- A source should be cited as a personal communication when there is no direct, reliable path for your readers to retrieve the information. Examples include phone calls, conversations, letters, emails, files attached to an email, internal documents, documents posted to a listserv or internal server, or any unpublished source to which your readers have no access.
- If a personal name is not given, include an occupation or position instead. Example: (lieutenant commander, USN, personal communication, April 11, 2022).

Website / Webpage

- The title of a website rarely includes ".com"—for example, BBC online is "BBC," not "BBC.com."
- Italicize newspaper names but not names of news organizations—for example, New York Times but not Reuters, Bloomberg, CNN, etc. These news organizations only have an online presence, whereas the New York Times also has a print counterpart.
- Follow the guidance in the Essential Rules for including page numbers.
- Do not use "Staff Writer" or "Editors" as the author; if no author name is listed, use the organization name.

Essential Rules

Accessed Dates

Only include date accessed if the source material has no date.

Author Names: Honorifics

Do not include honorifics (Dr., Col., Professor, etc.) when citing author names. Including these titles in the body of your document is acceptable.

Identifying Authors of Official Documents

For the National Security Strategy, cite the president as the author.

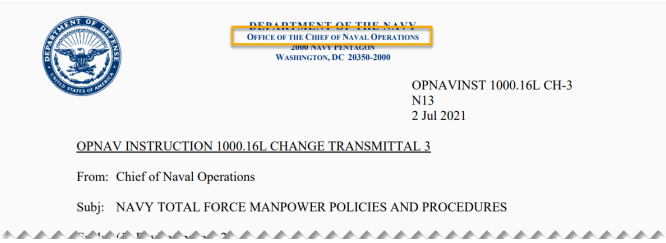
For other official documents, the author is the organization immediately responsible for creating the document. In the example below, the author is the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations and the publisher is the Department of the Navy.



DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS
2000 NAVY PENTAGON
WASHINGTON, DC 20350-2000

OPNAVINST 1000.16L CH-3
N13
2 Jul 2021

OPNAV INSTRUCTION 1000.16L CHANGE TRANSMITTAL 3

From: Chief of Naval Operations

Subj: NAVY TOTAL FORCE MANPOWER POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

In the example above, the author is NOT an umbrella organization, signatory, or any of the following:

- Chief of Naval Operations
- Deputy Chief of Naval Operations
- W. F. Moran
- Department of Defense
- Navy Pentagon
- R. P. Burke
- United States of America

Do not include acronyms for organizations listed as authors in the List of References or footnotes:

- YES: Office of the Chief of Naval Operations.
- NO: Office of the Chief of Naval Operations (CNO or OCNO).
- NO: CNO or OCNO.

Bibliography vs. List of References

What is the difference between them?

- A List of References includes all works cited in a text
- A Bibliography lists all works cited and consulted

The NPS Thesis Processing Office prefers a List of References for the following:

- Thesis
- Capstone project report
- MBA report
- Dissertation

Capitalization: Title Case vs. Sentence case

Title Case	Sentence case
Love among the Ruins: A Memoir of Life and Love in Hamburg, 1945	Love among the ruins: A memoir of life and love in Hamburg, 1945
Capitalize everything except: • conjunctions (and, but, or, etc.) • prepositions (to, of, on, among, between, etc.) • articles (a, an, the)	Capitalize only: • the first words in titles and subtitles • proper nouns

Note: Always format the information in your citations (titles, author names, etc.) according to the requirements of the citation style you are using, regardless of how it appears in the original source.

Country Names with Government Organizations

When naming government organizations, be consistent: for example, either Department of Defense or U.S. Department of Defense. If citing organizations from multiple countries, ensure that it is clear which organization is associated with which country—for example, Australian Department of Defence, South African Department of Defence, Sri Lanka Ministry of Defence, Singapore Ministry of Defence.

Figures / Images / Graphs

A citation is required if you did not wholly create the figure—i.e., if you used someone else's image or data. A citation is not needed when all elements of the figure are your own creation.

See Figure 1 for placement of the title and the in-text citation.

- Put a period and a space after the title.
- If you use the figure exactly as it appears in the source, use "Source: ___."
- If you alter the original figure or use someone else's image or data to create the figure, use "Adapted from ___."

How Often to Cite?

- Remember: one citation at the end of a string of sentences or a paragraph cannot “cover” the entire section.
- Cite a source the first time it is used in each paragraph.
- Every sentence thereafter in the paragraph that uses information from this same source must contain either a signal phrase or a citation clearly indicating where the information came from.
    - Note: always use a citation (even if you also use a signal phrase) every time you quote material.

In-text Citation Placement & Signal Phrases

Where in the sentence does my in-text citation go?

- If you name your source(s) in a given sentence, a parenthetical citation containing only the year always follows immediately after the name(s) of the author(s). Example: In contrast to earlier work by Abbott and Costello (1999), Laurel and Hardy (2008) propose an altogether different model for optimizing hat density.
- If you do not explicitly name your source(s) in a given sentence, a single parenthetical citation goes at the end of the sentence or clause it covers (Goffman 1974), inside the punctuation, like this (Melville 1851).
    - “If the sentence ends with a quotation, close the quote, then place the citation between the quotation marks and the punctuation, like this” (Woolf 1931, 14).
- Do not insert spaces between a parenthetical citation and the punctuation that follows it.

In the paragraph below, the parenthetical in-text citations are highlighted in yellow, and the signal phrases are in blue. Note that the second sentence is common knowledge, whereas the final sentence is clearly the opinion of the author.

> In a 2009 Journal of Restaurant Marketing article, restaurateur Shawna Jackson contends that a restaurant’s color scheme influences how hungry its patrons are. Consider popular fast-food restaurants, which often use red and yellow in their advertising and décor. According to a study by Roberta Chen and David Lopez (2016), restaurant customers feel energized in red and yellow environments, which encourages them to order more food. The same study indicates that patrons feel relaxed in blue and purple environments, which encourages them to “spend more time considering the menu options and eat at a slower pace” (29). Although blue décor can give your restaurant a more casual, laid-back feel (Chen and Lopez 2016), Jackson believes it encourages patrons to linger at their tables without ordering additional food or beverages. Accordingly, it is difficult to identify a popular chain restaurant that decorates with calmer hues.

- Using Signal Phrases Effectively

Missing Info

If any information is missing from a source (a journal with no volume number, for example), simply omit that information. For sources consulted in hardcopy, omit the URL and any additional verbiage that introduces it. Anything retrieved online, however, MUST have a link. The only exception is journals retrieved from a subscription database such as ProQuest.

Multiple Authors, et al.

- Up to three authors:
  - In the reference list, include all of them
  - In the text, include all of them

- Four to ten authors:
  - In the reference list, include all of them
  - In the text, list only the first author, followed by et al. (“and others”)

- More than ten authors:
  - In the reference list, include only the first seven, followed by et al.
  - In the text, list only the first author, followed by et al.

Multiple Works by the Same Author / Multiple Sources in One Citation

Examples given are for books; follow the appropriate style for the source type you are citing.

Source	Generic Example	Actual Example
Multiple Works by Same Author (same year, different sources) • List sources in alphabetical order by title in the List of References (ignoring initial "a," "an," or "the") and append a lowercase letter to the year.
Source 1	R: Author Last Name, Author First Name. Year published + a. Title of Book 1 in Title Case and Italics. Place of Publication: Publisher. T: (Author Last Name year + a)	R: Hawthorne, Pat. 2006a.The Cannibal's Dilemma: An Unnatural History of Four Siblings. New York: Penguin. T: (Hawthorne 2006a)
Source 2	R: Author Last Name, Author First Name. Year published + b. Title of Book 2 in Title Case and Italics. Place of Publication: Publisher. T: (Author Last Name year + b)	R: Hawthorne, Pat. 2006b. Having People for Dinner: A Guide for the Home Cook. New York: Penguin. T: (Hawthorne 2006b)
Combined	T (both sources): (Author Last Name year + a, year + b)	T (both sources): (Hawthorne 2006a, 2006b)
Multiple Works by Same Author (different year, different sources) • List sources in chronological order.
Source 2	R: Author Last Name, Author First Name. Year published. Title of Book 2 in Title Case and Italics. Place of Publication: Publisher. T: (Author Last Name year)	R: Hawthorne, Pat. 2008. Regrets. New York: Penguin. T: (Hawthorne 2008)
Combined	T (both sources): (Author Last Name year 1, year 2)	T (both sources): (Hawthorne 2006, 2008)
Multiple Sources in One Citation (different authors, different years) • Place references in alphabetical order and separate them with a semicolon. Ensure all authors appear in the list of references. • "Where two or more works by different authors with the same last name are listed in a reference list, the text citation must include an initial (or two initials or a given name if necessary)." CMOS 15.22
Combined	T: (Author 1 Last Name year; Author 2 Last Name year)	T: (Fiddleywink and Snort 2005; Munglesnee, Grumpernickel, and Smith 1995; Otatop 2007). T: (Q. Fiddleywink 1975; Z. Fiddleywink 1982)

No Date Given

To cite an undated document, use n.d. (no date). Ensure a comma separates the author or organization name and the year in parenthetical citations. For example: (Househill, n.d.).

Online Sources: Links

When listing an online document (for example, a thesis, report, or journal article) in the references, if possible, provide a DOI. If the source does not have a DOI, link to the document itself (PDF, etc.) or to the landing page that directs the reader to the full text.

- Do not insert a hard or soft return within the URL string: doing so breaks the link.
- A DOI or URL does not belong in an in-text citation. Ever.

Page Numbers and Other Locators

In-text Citations

- Include page numbers in in-text citations when citing quoted material.
- Example: (Haynes 2009, 70)
- No page number is needed in an in-text citation when you are referring to the source as a whole. For example: “George W. Bush’s Decision Points recounts pivotal moments during his time in office.”

If the source does not contain page numbers, often with electronic formats, include as much information as needed for the reader to locate the material. In citations especially of shorter electronic works presented as a single, searchable document, such locators may be unnecessary.

Locator Options	Example
heading or section name (okay to abbreviate a long heading or section name)	Methods section paragraph or section number	para. 2 sec. 24
chap, heading, or section in combination with a paragraph number	chap. 3, para. 1
descriptive phrase	under "The Battleground"
location numbers	loc. 444 of 3023, Kindle
table, figure, or slide number	table 1.4 fig. 3 slide 5
video or podcast time stamp	2:12
appendix number or letter	Appendix C

See CMOS 15.8: Page numbers and other locators in author-date text citations.

In the list of references/bibliography

For portions of larger documents, such as journal articles and book chapters, include the page range.

Example

> R: Cordesman, Anthony H., Adam Mausner, and David Kasten. 2009. Introduction. In Winning in Afghanistan: Creating Effective Afghan Security Forces, edited by John Smith, 1–12. Washington, DC: Center for Strategic and International Studies.

Print vs. Online Sources

When citing a source retrieved online, use the "online" format even when you or someone else printed out the material. For example, if you print out a thesis or your advisor provides you with a printed thesis, it is still categorized as an online document.

Only cite as a print source when the material has been produced by a publisher in hard copy. For example, if you obtain a print journal or book from the library stacks, it is categorized as a printed source.

Secondary / Indirect Sources

An indirect source is a source that cites some other work that you discuss in your text.

Whenever possible, consult primary sources and your sources' sources yourself. Upon investigation of the primary source, you may find you disagree with the indirect source author's analysis or methods.

How to Incorporate Indirect Sources

The following passage incorporates a properly credited indirect source. The indirect source information is highlighted in yellow; the primary source information is highlighted in blue.

> Walker (2008) describes Miguel Roig's 1999 experiment, which correlates inadequate paraphrasing in student writing with poor reading comprehension. Citing Roig's data, Walker explains that "students do in fact possess skills necessary for paraphrasing but … may be impeded from applying those skills when dealing with rigorous text" (387).

Note: Include only the indirect source (the source you consulted) in your reference list.

Tables

A citation is required if you did not wholly create the table—i.e., if you used someone else's data. A citation is not needed when all elements of the table are your own creation.

See Table 1 for placement of the title and the in-text citation.

- Put a period and a space after the title.
- If you use the table exactly as it appears in the source, use "Source: ___."
- If you alter the original table or if you use someone else's data to create the table, use "Adapted from ___."
